

References for the cover of:

Peter Stanley, Quinn's Post, Anzac, Gallipoli, Allen & Unwin, 2005.

The book's cover quotes six Quinn's survivors, two Australians and four New Zealanders:

'we were the key position to the Anzac line, and the post must be held at all costs'
T.P. Chataway, 'Death Rides Abroad', p. 21, MSS 652, Australian War Memorial

'the deadliest position on the peninsula'
'Narrative of experiences at Quinn's Post on 29th May 1915', Sergeant John Kidd, 15th Battalion, 3 DRL 8042 item 16 'Historical Notes – Gallipoli Notes on Quinn's Post April to July 1915 Extracts from private diary of Colonel H. Pope 16th Battalion', Australian War Memorial

'perhaps the scene of the most terrible struggle in all history'
Cecil Malthus, Anzac: A Retrospect, Whitcombe & Tombs, Auckland, 1965, p. 82

'a day in hell doesn't equal an hour in these trenches'
Diary, 31 May 1915, Private Ted Baigent, 6/752 Canterbury Battalion, Colin Townsend (ed.), Gallipoli 1915, privately printed, Paeroa, 1999, p. 28

"If Quinn's wasn't held, then no one in Anzac was safe."
Private Dan Curham, 10/300 Wellington Battalion, 1999.2964, Queen Elizabeth II Army Memorial Museum, Waiouru

'the ground itself ... seemed to be wounded and bleeding'
Lieutenant Wallace Saunders, New Zealand Engineers, MS-Papers-7336, Alexander Turnbull Library