

Online activities

Use the Memorial's online databases to investigate the war service of the following nurses. Some of these nurses died and some did not, so you may need to use a number of different databases to gather your information. For guidance on researching, see the Memorial's information sheets. When you are finished, present your findings to the class. You may wish to prepare an oral presentation using Powerpoint.

You can use one or more of the following databases to find your information:

The Roll of Honour

This will have the names of those nurses who died in war and some basic information about where and how they died.

Nominal Rolls

The nominal rolls list all Australians who enlisted in particular conflicts as well as some basic service details.

Honours and awards

Here you can find out whether any of the nurses received an award for their service.

Collections search

This database provides online access to the Memorial's collection. Here you may find an image of, or objects belonging to, one or more of these nurses.
