

Bibliography and resources

Barbara Angell, A woman's war: the exceptional life of Wilma Oram Young, AM, New Holland, Chatswood, NSW, 2003

Jan Bassett, Guns and brooches: Australian army nursing from the Boer War to the Gulf War, Oxford University Press, Melbourne, 1992

Mary Critch, Our kind of war: the history of the VAD/AAAMWS, Artlook Books Trust, Perth, 1981

Gay Halstead, Story of the RAAF Nursing Service 1940–1990, Nungurner Press, Metung, Vic., 1994

Enid Dalton Herring, They wanted to be Nightingales: a story of the VAD/AAAMWS in World War II, Investigator Press, Hawthorndene, SA, 1982

Betty Jeffrey, White coolies: a graphic record of survival in World War Two, Angus and Robertson, North Ryde, NSW, 1997

Catherine Kenny, Captives: Australian army nurses in Japanese prison camps, University of Queensland Press, St Lucia, 1986

Barbara Orchard, "Florence Nightingale: starting with a lighted lamp", Wartime 7, 1999

Richard Reid et al., Just wanted to be there: Australian service nurses, 1899–1999, Department of Foreign Affairs, Canberra, 1999

This document is available on the Australian War Memorial's website at <http://www.awm.gov.au/education/resources/nurses>

You may download, display, print and reproduce this worksheet only for your personal, educational, non-commercial use or for use within your organisation, provided that you attribute the Australian War Memorial.

Rupert Goodman, Our war nurses: the history of the Royal Australian Army Nursing Corps 1902–1988, Boolarong Publications, Brisbane, 1988

Jessie Elizabeth Simons, While history passed: the story of Australian nurses who were prisoners of the Japanese for three and a half years, William Heinemann, London, 1954

Press

Newspapers and magazines from the era provide interesting articles about many facets of life during the war years. State libraries generally maintain a good collection of newspapers; see particularly Trove on the National Library of Australia website. Wartime issues of the Australian Women's Weekly carried interesting articles about Australian women, men and children. Through its recipes, patterns and advertisements, the Weekly also gives a good indication of how everyday life was affected by wartime rationing and other things that were not available.

Oral history

This project has made use of the oral histories collected in the Keith Murdoch Sound Archives at the Australian War Memorial. Oral history is a fascinating type of history. Its value is debated, as it records memories of historic events recalled years later. This memory is filtered by time and other events. Collecting oral histories from women who remember the war would be an interesting project for local schools and communities to undertake.

Private records

The Australian War Memorial has a large collection of private records, including letters, diaries, cards, and other recollections. Many women in the local community have similar items, which can provide a valuable snapshot of history.

This document is available on the Australian War Memorial's website at <http://www.awm.gov.au/education/resources/nurses>

You may download, display, print and reproduce this worksheet only for your personal, educational, non-commercial use or for use within your organisation, provided that you attribute the Australian War Memorial.

Official records

Official records from the Memorial's collection, such as unit histories and diaries, were used in this project. Some official records may be available at the various State Archives offices.

Nurses: from Zululand to Afghanistan* exhibition (travelling from 16 February 2013 to 27 August 2015)

The Australian War Memorial is paying tribute to Australian military nurses in the travelling exhibition Nurses: from Zululand to Afghanistan. Through photographs, objects and works of art drawn from the Memorial's collection, it tells the story of Australian military nursing from 1879 to the present.