Summary note

This collection, which consists of 56 boxes, reflects Austin's lifelong interest in 19th Century Australian military history. Included are Austin's files of newsclippings, files of research notes and associated indexes, photocopies and printouts gathered during various research projects. These projects included work as the Army Historian, from which came the Army in Australia project, work as consultant to the Heritage Commission and as editor of the Journal of the Royal United Services Institute of Australia. Also included are the indexes to the New South Wales Corps which were a work-in-progress at the time of his death.

The papers described in this guide were donated to the Memorial in 1986.

Biographical note

Brigadier Maurice (Bunny) AUSTIN DSO, OBE

Born: in Geelong on 15 December 1916
Married: Enid Lyons in 1946
Died: in Canberra on 13 October 1985

Military Service

Austin enrolled at the Royal Military College (RMC), Duntroon on 1 March 1935, graduating on 13 December 1938. He subsequently served in the Australian Army from 14 December 1938 until discharge on retirement on 3 February 1971. He joined the Retired List and was appointed Army Historian on 5 July 1971.

Austin saw service in the Darwin Mobile Force and in 1940 was appointed adjutant of 2/27 Infantry Battalion serving in Syria. Returning to Australia in 1942 he joined the 29 Infantry Brigade as brigade major serving in Papua and New Guinea. In 1945 he was posted to RMC as an instructor. He commanded 2nd Battalion The Royal Australian Regiment (RAR) and later 1st Battalion RAR in Korea. From 1954 to 1958 he was Director of Infantry and Commandant of the Jungle Training Centre, Cunungra. Several staff appointments in the personnel branch of Army Headquarters followed. He also paid several visits to Vietnam.

Research and consultancy work

As Director of Infantry he personally re wrote the manuals of infantry minor tactics. From 1971 as a civilian he worked for a number of years as the Army Historian and studied the development of the Australian Army from 1788 to the present. He became the recognised authority in Australia on early military matters, particularly prior to Federation.

Austin's research produced articles for the Australian Army Journal (on the activities of the New South Wales Corps). This developed into an interest in the British Regiments which garrisoned the colonies until 1870 and led to the publication of his book The Army in Australia 1840-1850 by the Department of Defence. He also produced articles on soldiering in early Australia (extracts from contemporary newspapers) and on the use of Army records (especially the complex AJCP) which appeared regularly in Sabretache.

Austin was also a consultant for the Australian Dictionary of Biography for more than 20 years, in 1972 becoming a foundation member of the Armed Services Working Party for the Australian Dictionary of Biography. He served as editor for the Journal of the Royal United Services Institute of Australia 1980 to 1982 and undertook a variety of consultancies including research work for the Heritage Commission on military sites plus the Australian War Memorial's committee on the the atlas of Australia at war.

Honours and awards

How to request (or cite) an item from this guide

To request items listed in this guide which are held at the Memorial you should complete a pink request form and cite the required item number, for example

For the indexes

PR86/062, Series 1 (a) etc

The series numbers are important for the index cards because there are no individually numbered items within each series.

Other records

PR86/062, item [1] or PR86/062, item [147] etc

For these records the series numbers have been used to assist in grouping like records but are not essential for citation or retrieval.

PR86/062, Series one (a) Index to members of the New South Wales Corps who served between 1789 and 1800 (1807)

These white 8 x 10 inch cards are arranged alphabetically by surname and appear to relate to those who were on board ships en route to Australia in the period 1788 to 1792. These men would thus have enlisted into the Corps in the UK and attested there before embarkation or after arrival in the colony. The other entries on the cards record service history, dates of service, personal occurrences (promotion, death, discharge), officer and company details. This information was gleaned from Australian Joint Copying Project reels (especially those for muster rolls) Historical Records of New South Wales and Historical Records of Australia, Cobley's Sydney Cove and the Sydney Morning Herald. Some cards include fairly lengthy biographical notes and some have a variety of spellings for surnames. Where applicable the cards also record recruitment from the Savoy prison.

Date range 1789 to 1807

PR86/062, Series one (b) Index to members of the New South Wales Corps who served between 1791 and 1807

These white 8 x 10 inch cards are arranged alphabetically by surname and appear to relate to those who were on board ships en route to Australia in the period 1791 to 1807. These men would thus have enlisted into the Corps in the UK and attested there before embarkation or after arrival in the colony. The other entries on the cards record service history, dates of service, personal occurrences (promotion, death, discharge), officer and company details. This information was gleaned from Australian Joint Copying Project reels (especially those for muster rolls). Some cards include fairly lengthy biographical notes and some have a variety of spellings for surnames. Where applicable the cards also record recruitment from the Savoy prison and whether guard on a convict ship.

Date range 1791 to 1807

PR86/062, Series one (c) Index to reinforcements for the New South Wales Corps who arrived in the colony 1808

These orange or green 8 x 10 inch cards are arranged alphabetically by surname. The cards follow the individuals' careers of individuals, who arrived in the colony on HMT Recovery or HMT Sinclair, from attestation or embarkation until the Corps' disbandment in 1810. They record postings (officer's name and thus company) dates of service, transfer, death or if returned to the United Kingdom with the 102nd Regiment. The index also includes some members who were already members of the Corps and in the colony in 1808 (eg Thomas Self who can also be found in series 1 (a).

Date range 1808-1810

PR86/062, Series one (d) Index to officers in the New South Wales Corps

These white 8 x 10 inch cards are arranged alphabetically by surname and dates of service, place of duty (eg Van Dieman's Land, Parramatta and Norfolk Island) and date of return to the UK or periods of leave. The information has been extracted from Australian Joint Copying Project reels, Historical Records of Australia and Historical Records of New South Wales.

Date range 1799 to 1809

PR86/062, Series one (e) Index to the "outs" [those leaving the New South Wales Corps]

These 8 x 10 inch cards provide service particulars and indexes to those who left the Corps (through death, desertion, claimed by another unit or those who failed to appear on the muster rolls). Cards are arranged alphabetically within chronological sub categories.

Date range 1789-1792

PR86/062, Series one (f) Index to civil officers attached to the New South Wales Corps

These white 8 x 10 inch cards are arranged alphabetically by surname. Particulars of dates and appointments and notes of correspondence are recorded for those civil officers who were attached to the corps (eg commissaries, surveyors, boat builders and surgeons) The Historical Records of New South Wales were used to extract this information.

Date range 1731 to 1800

PR86/062, Series one (g) Miscellaneous cards and working notes

This "index" appears to be interrupted "work in progress" cards, with leads to follow up and particulars of individuals for whom Austin still sought information. Mention is made of the gap in the muster rolls for 1797 and the use made of substitute pay lists. Also included are the keys to abbreviations used, dates of shipping arrivals, names of superintendents and agents and the structure of the civil establishment.

Date range 1792 to 1793

PR86/062, Series one (h) Index recording the disposition of those still serving in the Corps at the time of disbandment (1810)

The information on these 8 x 10 inch white or green cards was gleaned by Austin from Australian Joint Copying Project records. He used description and succession books for the New South Wales Corps, service returns, Muster Generals' index of casualties and casualty returns 102nd Foot (1810-1817). Personal details extracted include date of birth, age, place of origin (parish, town and county) complexion, eyes, hair, visage, trade, dates of service and shipping movements.

Dispersal could include discharge, transfer to the 102nd Foot or a veterans' battalion. There are also a number of sub groups for those still serving in the period 1807-1810

- claimed by civil power before embarkation
- deserted before embarkation
- left sick in New South Wales supposed to be subsisted by the 73rd Regiment
- discharged on 24 April 1810 but not shown as such on payroll assume discharged 24 March 1810
- off roll before 1808
- disappeared without trace
- discharged by general court martial prior to embarkation
- discharged having found a substitute
- executed before embarkation
- discharged prior to embarkation
- died before embarkation

The cards are arranged alphabetically by surname within these groups. Also included are abbreviations, working notes and sources.

Date range 1807 to 1817

Series 22, Printouts from Australian Joint Copying Project microfilms

Description This a collection of printouts from the microfilms prepared for the Australian Joint Copying Project. In this case Austin selected records from the reels for the War Office and Colonial Office originals of which are held in Britain. These records complement and overlap the despatches found in Historical Records of Australia and Historic Records of New South Wales. The copies reflect Austin's many research interests (conditions for the New South Wales Corps and the British Army in Australia and colonial life generally). Most copies were in poor physical condition, with deteriorating images and, as they had few annotations, the bulk were destroyed and list of references to Australian Joint Copying Project reels and any correspondence retained.

Date range by 1960's to 1980's

PR86/062, item [105] Folders of miscellaneous printouts from the Australian Joint Copying Project microfilms, included are lists of printouts and notes and correspondence relating to enquiries answered using the Australian Joint Copying Project
